whole Debate, had taken ingentarged View of the St. ject, and hinted it as his Opinion, that this Minimus ject, and hinted to avoiding its gestuing from the state of the stat bid the fairest to produce its genuine Fruits, if the fire bid the fairest to produce its genuine Fruits, if the fact Rudiments of Education were acquired in the school Publick and private of the first Throughout the Province, and the lak Finish given at the Conlege, provided with able Instructors in every Branch of interal and physical able Instructors in every Branch of interal and physical Science. It is with the profoundest Humility and Diffidence that I would deliver any Sentiments on Diffidence that I would delicate a Nature, but my finds ment does not frigger to me any competent Object why this Route may not be the most eligible in what ever Point of Light it viewed. But whether the Plan, after a mature and dispassionate Deliberati hall be adopted, or the whole Business of Education, from the Giammar to those Studies which form the unful Citizen and compleat the Oentleman, failled appointed to be begun,and closed beregrit would bei that those to whose Wildom and Virtue it shall committed to compote a Spilent of-Laws for the Go. vernment of this rifing Seminary, eagmet keep to too, flantly before them the indispenible Necessity of a rigid Dikipline to be enforced with the purel Impe-tiality, without the least Mixture either of Favour or Dread of Influence. A dry healthy Situation, and its Consequences salubrious Air, cannot possibly be more essential to the Health of the Pupikthan a well digeted Discipline to his Preficiency in his literary Pursuit, Parentes objurgatione digni funt quia noinnt heeres fues je vera lege preficere, tays Petromus, who was no lets a Man of the World than of Books, and Experience feems to put it beyond a Controversy, however the great Authorities of Locks and Quinihas may be advanced in Opposition, that my young Mester, untilize attain to a certain Stage, is best kept to his Duty ei-ther by the Terror or actual Application of corporal Correction : and I cannot but think that Herace, the Romane filicen bra, was bound to acknowledge himfife Romane nation by a, was bound to acknowledge himflife under the greatest Obligations to his old Master Ordenius, to whom he humourously gives the Epithet Flagosus, for whose forming Hand if it had not been he would fearcely ever have thruck his afpiring Head against the Stars, or become the Darling, the samilar Friend of the great Master of the World.

Did not the ornamental Parts of Education, the Facility of every Species of Accommodation, with a Thoufand other important Circumkances, confpice to render the Necessity of founding every University or Coilege on an extensive Plan in some flourishing City or Town clear and obvious; the Bramples of ancient Greece and Rome, as well as those of almost all the modern European States and Kingdoms, where Learning. Politeneis, and as a characteriftical Temp. sance of Manners flourith, would be fufficient to determine us in that Point. In Ciries and Towns it must be acknowledged, that P cafure has all her Ministers at work to decoy the heedless Novice, just emancipated from his Subjection to the Ferula & Verberitus into the various Snares spread for his Dettruction, that the has there her Cup tempered to every Appetite.

But when the indelible Ignominy of a publick Expulfion, when a Degree of Difgrace suitable to each Delinquency shall be held forth to those who shall dare to infult or trample upon the irreverfible Decrees of the Alma Mater, when the fevereft Animadversion shall be denounced against all fuch as shall be feen haunting either Taverns or Coifee-houses, when the Students thad be compelled to give within their own Walls those Hours to R-pole which Nature asks to recruit her Vigour wasted by Application, when the glittering Prize of Honour shall be proposed to instance them with E-mulation, to excite them to stretch every Neve in the Struggle for literary Fame, when their publick anniversa, y Exercises shall be performed before numerous and judicious Auditories, we shall hear of no Bacchanalian Feast, no nocturnal Orgics, no

Lords of the Street and Terrors of the Way. Every reasonable Parent muit ceafe to shudder either for the Health and Morals of his growing Heir, and all the Throbbings of his Heart be at Peace.

If my crude and hasty Suggestions should engage any Man of Talents in the Discussion of a Subject the wisest and the best, I shall challenge the Merit of having laid my Country under an Obligation that will not quickly pass away. For it is my most ferrent Prayer that this fair Sun of Science, which has at length emerged out of that dark broading Night in which it has been to long inveloped, may travel on to its Meridian Altitude, unfhorn of a fingle Beam, invigarating every Principle of Virtue, and expa ding every Flower of Genius with his warmest kindlich In-
